POINT OF ORDER RAISED AGAINST SHOALS BILL

Andrews Suggests 'Prohibition Commission'

SECRETARY WOULD STUDY QUESTION IN ALL OF ITS PHASES

President To Be Asked To Name Men Outside of Politics

EFFECTS OF DRY RULE SOUGHT

Enforcement Official Raps Modern Trend of Social Drinking

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 1—Creation of a commission to study the general prohibition question in all its aspects was proposed today by Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury, in charge of dry law enforcement.

With both senate and house preparing to take steps inquiring into conditions under prohibition and wet and dry organizations engaged in bitter controversy over it, Mr. Andrews declared he believed the time had come for a thorough study of the question in its economic, social and other phases.

Unwilling to make an estimate of the various effects of the law, itself the secretary declared that if enforcement is to proceed with success, some action must be taken to quiet the public mind. In the six years since the eighteenth amendment to the constitution was adopted no move of a similar nature has been made by an authorized administration official, although congress has been asked on numerous occasions, by various groups, to order such a procedure.

Mr. Andrews emphasized that it was his business to enforce law, rather than to judge its benefits or disadvantages and he suggested that the study be left to a commission to be appointed by the president, which would have trained experts and wide inquisitorial powers. He thought the investigating being proposed in congress would be helpful, but believed they would result ultimately in recommendation for appointment of a general commission, to be composed of men of high standing and which would be outside of the political field. Enforcement of the law so far, he said, has not been a fair test of the working of prohibition and a fair test cannot be made until a judiciary and police sufficient to carry out the law is available.

Complaining against the continuous agitation against the law, the Assistant Secretary said this was responsible for the social trend of drinking. He said he hoped for the time when hostesses would apologize for serving liquor, rather than for not serving it, which latter condition, he said, now exists to a more or less degree.

He added that if improvement of enforcement continues on its present basis, the time soon would come when the hostess would apologize for the quality of the liquor, at least.

Double Tragedy Chapter Closed

(Associated Press)

LEXINGTON, Miss., March 1—Burial today of the bodies of M. E. Fritz 84, an optometrist, and his wife marked the closing chapter of a double tragedy here, which a coroner's jury last night held was the slaying of Mrs. Fritz by the aged man and his death by his own hand.

A letter found addressed to Dr. Fritz's two sons and to former governor Noel, of Mississippi, were not made public. Will Fritz, a son, is quoted as having told the county sheriff that members of the family were satisfied that the finding of the coroner's jury was correct, and no further official investigation would be necessary.

TALLADEGA MAN IS FOUND DEAD TODAY

Salesman Believed To Have Taken Own Life With Shotgun

(Associated Press)

TALLADEGA, Ala. March 1—John Beavers, 35, travelling salesman, for the Talladega Hardware company, was found dead early this morning in the basement of the building occupied by his firm, from effects of a gun shot wound.

Beavers, who had prominent Talladega county connection and was well known in this section, left home about five o'clock this morning to go to the store, telling his wife he wanted an early breakfast as he meant to make an early start through his territory police say.

When the store was opened at seven o'clock his body was found on the steps that lead to the basement, with a shotgun under his body. Police believe that he committed suicide, but no motive could be discovered for the act, they stated.

He is survived by his widow and two brothers, both of whom are prominent Talladega business men. This was the fourth suicide of well known men in Alabama recently.

Birmingham Club Visited By Band

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 1—County authorities today were advised that 150 masked and robed men visited Linger Longer Lodge, an exclusive club on Shades mountain, late Saturday night and burned a cross in front of the place.

Henry F. Beaumont, manager of the club, was in conference with county officials today, but it was not stated whether any action in the matter would be taken.

The robed figures appeared at the gates to the lodge about 11 o'clock Saturday night and later they encircled the club house where the regular Saturday evening dance was in progress.

MARSHALL DROPS DEAD AT HIS WORK

Former Employee of the City Dies During Morning Hours

Tom Marshall, aged about 60 years former city of Albany employee dropped dead today while plowing in the field next to the Cooper-Wells hosiery mills. Death is believed to be attributed to high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries. Death was instantaneous according to officers who went to his assistance upon being notified.

An ambulance was called soon after the report of the fatality had been made to the Albany city hall and the remains were removed to the home of a son, Max Marshall at 1413 6th avenue South.

Funeral services had not been announced this afternoon.

Alcohol Output To Be Curtailed

This emblem was made of inflammable material, evidently saturated in oil, which made a weird light on the mountain side.

It was recalled a large group of masked men appeared on a downtown street Saturday night about 9:30 o'clock. Later it was said that several automobiles, containing masked men, were seen driving toward the lodge.

Beaumont said he inquired of the band as to the purpose of the visit, but received no response. The club embraces in its membership leading men and women of Birmingham.

WORKERS DISCUSS CAMPAIGN STATUS ON TUESDAY NIGHT

Many Guests Added As Time Nears For a Decision

CONFIDENCE IS EXPRESSED TODAY

Others Success Used In Talk By Civic Leaders

Whether Albany-Decatur will drive for $50,000 as an industrial foundation will be known Tuesday night.

Celebrating its victory in the recent Benevolent Hospital drive, civic project which reached its $60,000 quota, the team workers of A. L. Moye, with a number of guests, will meet at the Savoy Cafe Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock to attend a banquet that was promised the winning team which turned in the greatest aggregate contributions during the recent campaign.

A. L. Moye will preside at the banquet, having led the team through a hard fought campaign that resulted in victory. The following team workers will be present: T. M. Wiley, F. L. Nebrig, J. O. Colvard, Morris Ford, Claude Scott, A. S. Malone, B. E. Johnson and G. E. McQuibben.

Supplementing the team workers will be members of the executive committee of the recent campaign and a number of guests and friends who are interested in seeing the $50,000 drive for 50,000 folks well underway. A probable decision on the campaign status will be given Tuesday night, following discussions of plans around the festive board of the Savoy. The following guests are included in this hospitality: T. A. Bowles, John Patterson, Charles Rountree, F. H. Pointer, B. D. Meadors, J. H. Johnson, W. W. Fussell, A. D. Jervis, W. M. Bailey, E. C. Payne, J. D. Wyker, W. R. Spight, B. C. Shelton and Reverends J. D. Wallace, Noble R. Edwards, James D. Hunter and E. Floyd Olive.

Speaking of the launching of an industrial campaign which will mean investment in industries and not donations or contributions, leaders today were pointing to the accomplishment of other cities of like size in the state which have undertaken huge drives for bringing industry. Success is noted in every case. Huntsville, Gadsden, Opelika, the Tri-Cities, Anniston and a number of others are in the state civic lineup with a heavy batting average in swinging substantial drives to success. Leaders were directing the question to business interests, "Others did it, cannot we do the same?"

The decision of the executive committee is awaited with interest by Twin Cities, nearly 500 local citizens having gone on record as endorsing such a campaign.

Mrs. George Yancey Dies at Residence

Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock for Mrs. George Yancey, aged 19 years, who passed away Sunday at her residence in Austinville. Revs. Over and Lane will conduct the funeral services with interment to follow at Roselawn cemetery, Priest directing. Mrs. Yancey is survived by her husband and an infant daughter, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. McDowry, two brothers and seven sisters, all of Austinville.

TELEPHONE OFFICE KEEPS OPEN HOUSE ANNIVERSARY WEEK

Public Invited To See How the System Is Operated

FARMERS WILL BE GUESTS HERE

Growth of Telephone Plant One of the Marvels of Age

Marking the 50th anniversary of the telephone the local exchange will keep open house during the week of March 8, and telephone subscribers and the general public have been invited to visit the office during birthday week and see how telephone service is rendered.

As a part of the anniversary, J. B. Cassels district manager of the Southern Bell here, announced today he plans to entertain a party of from 75 to 100 farmers about March 20, at which time the farmers will spend a day here as guests of the telephone company. The visitors will be shown through the plant and will be entertained by the company at luncheon at a local cafe.

There are 20,500 Bell Telephone workers in the Southeastern states who will join in the nation-wide celebration. The South can claim with pride that the telephone owes a part of its development to the reception given it in the South in its infancy.

Among the first telephone exchanges established were those opened in some of the leading cities of the South during the year 1879. Among the cities in this pioneer list are Augusta, Savannah and Atlanta, Ga.; Charleston, S. C.; Wilmington, N. C.; Mobile Ala.; Louisville, Ky.; and Richmond, Lynchburg and Norfolk, Va.

First Exchange The first building ever erected to be used exclusively as a telephone exchange was constructed in Louisville, Ky., some fifteen years before the close of the nineteenth century.

Four days after his twenty-ninth birthday and three days before the first sentence was transmitted, Alexander Graham Bell, an impetuous young Scotchman, received his patent for the telephone. If he had lived until today, he would have seen his first telephone system of two crude instru-

ROB SALESMAN OF FORTUNE IN GEMS

Two Men Use Slug On Victim, Then Dash Off With Jewels

(Associated Press)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 1—Herman Hamburger, 28, New York jewelry salesman, was robbed of jewels valued at approximately $100,000 today while on the way to a local jewelry store.

Hamburger reported he was accosted by a man at a busy downtown corner and asked for a match. Before he could reply two other men slugged him behind and the three men grabbed his jewelry case from under his arm, ran across the street, and jumped into a waiting automobile threatening pursuers by a motion as though to draw a pistol.

Hamburger is a member of the firm of Klonka and Hamburger jewelers, New York.

HOSPITAL HEADS CHANGED TODAY

First Payments Are Due On Pledges Made In Drive

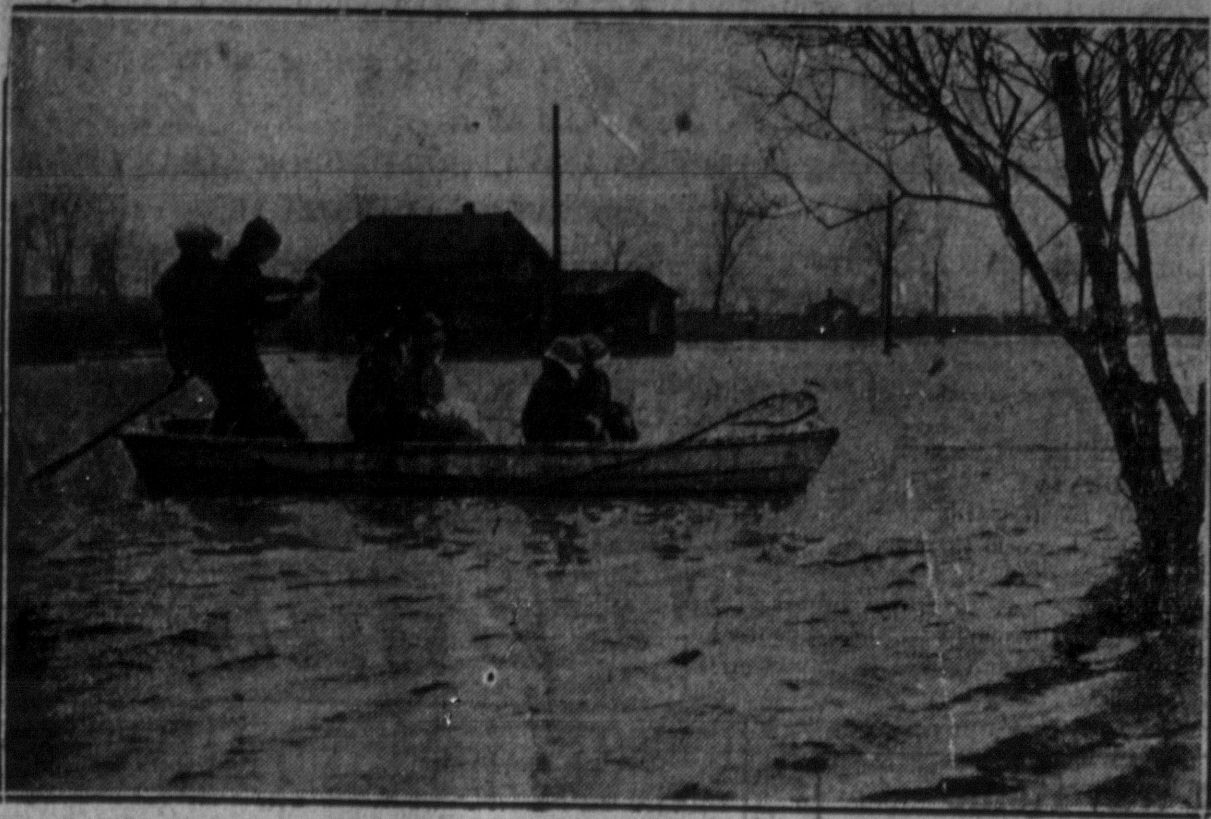

T. A. Bowles has been selected as treasurer of funds recently pledged in the Benevolent hospital drive for $60,000, it was announced today. Mr. Bowles succeeds W. R. Spight who handled funds during the recent successful campaign. James H. Johnson has been chosen as secretary.

First payments of pledges were being received today, it was stated by officials, the first installment of the pledges falling due March 1. Leaders directed pledges to make checks payable either to Mr. Bowles or Mr. Johnson, to any of the four banks. The pledges can be paid either in person or sent by mail. Cards are being printed at this time to tell pledgees of the first due installment.

Hospital campaign headquarters at the Y. M. C. A. were closed today for the first time in the past two months, all routine work of the campaign having been closed.

LOCAL MILLS ADD TWO LINES AND PREPARE FOR GOOD YEAR

Two new lines have been added to the production lists of the local branch of Cooper-Wells Hosiery Mills, manufacturers of Iron-Clad hosiery, it was announced today by V. L. King, manager. Boy's rib stockings and infants wear, on plaited silk, are the two lines added. The addition makes the second manufacture of boys' rib goods. The plant is employing 15 operatives at the present time. Whether the addition of the lines will mean additional employment was not made known at the plant.

The Cooper-Wells plant, to the observer who does not know the intricacies of the business, offers a wealth of knowledge. The plant, clean and sanitary in every respect, begins the manufacture of product from the spools of yarn, situated at the front of the building. Yarn is received in case lots and is fed to the ribbing machines which make the leg to the stocking, in one continuous piece. These long pieces go to the cutting department where the fabric is cut in specified sizes and in dozen pairs. This article then goes to the knitting department where the foot is fitted to the leg, then to the looping department where the toe of the stocking is closed. The finished product is sent to the inspecting department where workers assort the materials according to sizes and styles. The finished product is packed in bags and separated, to be loaded for the main offices at St. Joseph Michigan for the finishing processes.

Speaking of the outlook at the local plant Mr. King declared that additional machinery will be required for the manufacture of the new lines just placed here and possibly additional employees will be used. On this latter point, however, the manager was not certain.

Cooper-Wells mills is ready to enlarge at the local plant as soon as the business justifies expansion here. The present building offers 60 ft. by 140 ft., for the housing of machinery and 30 ft. by 40 ft. for the shipping department. Five lots to the rear of the present plant are owned by the St. Joseph concerns as well as the lot next to the car barns of the North Alabama Traction Co. No indication of when the company plans to expand was given.

EDWARDS TALKS TO LARGE GATHERING

Minister Asks "Who Is Jesus," Sunday At Theatre

A large congregation gathered at the Princess Theatre Sunday evening to hear Rev. Noble R. Edwards, pastor of the Moulton street Christian church ask and answer the question, "Who is Jesus?" The minister's message was conveyed to the interested audience in a forceful and direct manner. Special music featured the program.

Reverend Edwards introduced his well chosen subject by declaring that people of the present day do not hear enough of the real Jesus. He said, "we often think of one who lived 2000 years ago, one who has nothing to offer us," is speaking of the present-day train of thoughts concerning our savior.

The minister summarized his answer to the question, "Who is Jesus," in three statements: He is the Son of God; 2. He is the Savior of Man; 3. He saves us to Serve. The pastor concluded a beautiful story of belief and service under the latter heading concluding his talk in pointing to history where it was shown that the disciples served in teaching the word of God, that they went up and down the land with the message of the Savior and that even in every walk of life today there are to be found people doing a service for their God, many of them listed as unfortunates in the material world.

FARM DEMONSTRATION NOTES

The Pricville Home Demonstration club met on Friday and Saturday, February 12th and 13th, at the schoolhouse and used the two days in making hats. Miss Sallye Hamilton, the estimable County home demonstration agent was in charge. Mrs. Tom Price and Mrs. Ed Price, who took the course under Miss Eddy in Hartselle in January assisted with the work.

Much interest was manifested from the beginning and the course was quite a success. The work done by the club members overstepped all expectations. By 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon many beautiful hats were ready for the exhibit table.

As a result of the interest in hat making we have secured several new members. The club adjourned to meet the first Friday in March.

The Eva Home Improvement club met on Wednesday, February 3rd, at the schoolhouse. The following was the order of business; club was called to order by the president.

Song and yell, each being led by the respective leaders.

Roll call by secretary. Each girl answered roll with her respect of work done since the last meeting. Most of the girls had done some planting and other things to beautify the home.

The minutes were read by the secretary and vised by club.

Miss Hamilton examined the kitchen plans brought in by the club members.

For the lesson Miss Hamilton gave a talk on the kitchen.

The song leaders led the club in a song.

We adjourned with our club pledge. A yell was given by the club members to show their appreciation for Miss Hamilton.

SYNOPSIS

Prince Michael Yeredoff, wealthy Russian noble, gives a wild party in his Paris apartment, even inviting in some street revellers, chiefly because Colette, their glib leader, attracts his master-philanderer's eye. Dolores, one of Michael's cast-off, threatens revenge. Michael's Aunt, Grand Duchess Sophia, stops in to leave Paul, Michael's younger brother, for a visit. Michael is devoted to the boyish, unsophisticated Paul, and his always shielded him. Colette takes "French leave" while Michael admits his interest in her to his valet friend.

"But doesn't that come to all of us at some time? Don't we all have to struggle for our ideals, varied as they may be? She is no different than the rest of us. Freddy, Armand, you, I—all have to make the same fight in some form or shape. Of course, a poor girl's struggle is the hardest."

"And for what ideal are you struggling so manfully—or rather womanfully—now, may I ask?" Michael was faintly cynical.

"My ideal at the present time," Nina said with a brassy smile, "is a far coat that I saw in a shop this afternoon—and the mental struggle to crush my common sense, which tells me that I cannot afford to buy it, is tremendous. Something seems to tell me that I shall realize my ideal however, even at the expense of refusing to return to stern, hard facts!"

"Yes, your struggle must be tremendous and I can deeply sympathize with you," laughed Michael coolly as the last strains of the waltz died away and the flow of the dance ceased like congealing cake frosting.

Meanwhile, Paul had not retired as Michael thought. Instead, he had gone into the library, drawn by curiosity as to whether the girl with whom he had chatted upon his arrival was still there.

"To you, Mademoiselle," Paul cried, touching goblets with her.

The guarded radiance of a floor lamp had revealed her still sitting by the window staring out upon the moon-washed streets.

"Mademoiselle," Paul said timidly walking over to her, "how delighted I am that you are still here. But why are you not in the ballroom? The noise indicates the people there are enjoying themselves without restraint; but then, to give happiness to others seems to be one of my brother's habits."

"Your brother?" Dolores stared hard at him.

"Why, yes, my brother Michael—surely you know him?"

"Yes—I know him," she said slowly, "but to tell you the truth, Monsieur Paul, for I know that is your name—I was not feeling very well, and was resting here for a few moments before leaving for home. The moonlight entranced me so that those 'morants' have multiplied. I feel much better now, though," she added, with a subtle, graceful smile. "Your presence, Monsieur, seems to be an excellent tonic!"

She tapped her lips with her fan. So this boy, who flushed with unsophisticated pleasure at her compliment, was Paul, whom Michael idolized. She remembered how Michael always had excluded him carefully from the gay parties; how he had lavished affection upon him.

Michael had often told her, "On idler in the family is enough and little Paul will not be a second if I can help it!"

Now, through some strange working of fate, Dolores, ruthlessly discarded by Michael, was sitting in his library with this brother—who was the one vulnerable spot in Michael's life, the weak heel of the Achilles of Parisian society—at her feminine mercy. The irony of the situation amused her, and she quickly determined upon a course of action

—a hard, brilliant plan. Michael could blame nobody but himself for what the future might bring forth. He thought that the comedy was ended; but as she had already threatened, it was not the close of the play—only the beginning of another act!

"This music is a captivating accompaniment to our meeting, Mademoiselle," blurted Paul as melodious strains came from the ballroom. Then, timidly, crudely hopeful, "I am sorry that you are feeling indisposed, for I might have begged the pleasure of a private dance with you in this little salon of our own!"

"If you will join me, Monsieur," she replied, "a dance amidst such surroundings would be in itself a delightful cure for my indisposition! But, first—a glass of wine!"

In answer to Paul's summons, a servant brought champagne.

"To you, Mademoiselle," Paul cried, touching goblets with her, "and to the pleasure of our first dance together. May it be the forerunner of many!"

"A strange situation for you, Monsieur," Dolores said archly, "proposing a toast to a lady whom you have never seen before, and whose name you do not even know!"

"Don't say a strange situation, Say, rather, that it is a most unexpected and charming surprise. Surely, you will relieve my suspense and tell me your name?"

The same heritage of coquetry that constituted Michael's chief charm revealed itself in his brother, and Dolores smiled sadly. Yes, the same gracious charm was there—but would the same cynicism and carelessness eventually appear? For what reason had Michael turned so against her? Just because he had grown surfeited, and evidently expected her to tire at exactly the same time? Had he expected her to shake hands and part the best of friends, as he had more than once hinted? Should romance mean no more than that to a passionate woman? A wave of bitterness surged over her.

"Very well, Michael," she thought bitterly to herself, "our little affair is dead, then, and past, but a new one will start in which you won't be a participant! Not at first, at least, though it may develop into the grimest tragedy of your life."

"You have not answered my question," said Paul, suddenly interrupting the girl's reflections. "I ask your pardon, Monsieur, but it was thinking. My name? Well, if your curiosity must be appeased, it is Dolores Sierra."

She rose and smiled coquettishly. "And now—in spite of many protestations and appeals, I have kept the next dance for you."

"And I am flattered that out of the vast crowd of your admirers here," Paul gestured toward the shimmering moonbeams—"I should be the lucky recipient of your favor."

He eagerly shifted a table and some chairs, clearing a small space. The intervening walls softened the orchestral music to subdued tones that created an amorous atmosphere for the two dancers in the library.

In common outwardly they typified youth as they gazed about, but their spirits were widely apart. Paul's was the happy, carefree abandon that had never confronted any obstacles; while Dolores, though outwardly possessing the same freshness and charm, was at heart a bitter and long-disillusioned woman of easy virtue.

"You dance divinely, Mademoiselle," he murmured huskily, "but that can be no news to you."

There isn't a woman in this world, Monsieur, who has ever wearied of a compliment, especially if it is sincere.

Suddenly Dolores grew deathly pale and a hunted look dulled her eyes as she caught sight of Michael standing in the doorway. All the cruelty of which this master philanderer was capable was depicted in his face.

Slowly, Dolores' glance changed to one of defiance. Forcing a bland carelessness, she ignored Michael's presence.

"Ah, my dear friend," she said to Paul, and seemed to move a little closer to him, "you are right. This evening is divine."

Michael waited until they had finished their dance. Then he went brusquely to Paul and put a hand on his shoulder.

"I thought you had retired and I was just going up to your room. I never dreamed that you were having a little party of your own."

Michael strove to conceal the mingled worry and fury in his heart.

"—And a most enjoyable one, too," Paul enthused. "I prevailed on Mademoiselle Dolores to remain, and never have I so enjoyed a dance!" Paul's face was flushed, his eyes sparkling with unusual brilliancy; warm with his own emotions he failed to note the anger in his brother's face.

Dear People:

Decatur, Ala., March 1, 1926.

They always say that when you go into politics you'll be disgraced, so I might as well tell you how it came about in my case as the joke is out and I might as well tell everybody to keep neighbors from repeating to each other what I call a very poor joke.

I made a canvass of all the business houses in Decatur and Albany and the results were so flattering that I began to think of buying a number 7 1/2 hat. When got on the streets introducing myself to everybody, they began to say, "Are you related to Mrs. Giers?" I say, "Sure, I'm the boss." Now this query was put me ninety-nine times and I'd say, "Yes, I'm the boss. Well, I just got off the street to find out whether I was running or my wife. I went into a store and told a friend about it and he put some guys wise to my condition. Well, I hadn't been on the street long again when I was greeted with the lovely salutation of 'Hello, Petticoat Giers.'"

Now, who ever heard of such an incongruity. Up Valhermoso they call me "Backbone" Giers, because I am not a "yes" man, and down here they are comparing me to almost the smallest thing in existence—just about as square meal for a moth.

It's nice to have your wife complimented, but when a man is running for office he feels that he is the rest of the stuff himself.

Now I am going to wire my campaign manager who is at Geneva on world business to come by airplane at if possible by wireless, to take charge and in the meantime, I'm going to Valhermoso and grow a mustache.

THE ACHIEVEMENT OF YESTERDAY Is the Heritage of Tomorrow

THE details and results of the operations of the Southern Group of Bell Telephone Companies during the year 1925 enable you to be familiar with the progress of the telephone industry in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, the Carolinas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee. This presentation is but a continuation of our policy of taking the public fully into our confidence, and expressing the appreciation of the telephone workers for your friendly interest and co-operation.

IN these nine States there was an expenditure last year of approximately $23,668,700 for gross additions to the telephone plant.

There was a net gain of 54,186 new telephone stations, which required that 173,931 telephones be installed and 119,745 be removed.

Service is now rendered to 1,147,590 telephone stations in the nine States. Of these 772,979 are Bell owned, 336,430 are owned by other companies, but connected with the Bell System and include thousands of telephones located in farm homes.

The investment in service, December 31, 1925, was $143,962,506, not including $2,355,011 of construction work in progress.

This investment includes such permanent property as 890 central offices, with their switchboards and other associated equipment; 2,600,845 miles of wire (3.5 miles per telephone); 39,086 miles of pole line and 2,807 miles of underground duct.

To build, operate, maintain and manage this system requires the services of an army of skilled men and women, whose annual payroll amounts to $20,835,862.

The duties of citizenship impose the responsibility of sharing the cost of government by the payment of taxes. Last year the tax expense amounted to $3,966,784, which is three times as great as the tax bill for the year 1918.

The use of the service is a measure of its value and efficiency. Last year there was an enormous increase in the volume of calls, and it is a matter of pride that the character of the service rendered was of a high order—the best for any year since the war.

Another source of satisfaction has been our happy relations with our customers and with the public. This has been reflected in the fact that there are now more than 11,548 stockholders of the Bell System in this territory, who own 218,016 shares of stock.

The telephone workers appreciate your friendly co-operation, and it encourages them to strive continually to render the kind of service you want.

12 Years Ago From the Daily of TODAY

March 1, 1914

March 1 falling on Sunday, there was no issue of The Daily of that date.

In the meantime, Mr. Patterson's inquiry as to what Candidate McDowell's platform is, remains unanswered.

Prince Philip of Hesse is a good imitator, if nothing else. He was recently injured when he fell from his horse. The Prince of Wales should copyright his act.

Birmingham ties Atlanta by having three days of grand opera, and immediately the pesky Atlanta city breaks forth in a new place by furnishing a new middleweight boxing champion. Rather disconcerting, Wot!

The mine inspector blames a negro for the explosion and death of 27 men in a Shelby county mine. It will not lessen the grief of those 27 stricken families in the least, but we are glad to know where the responsibility rests for the disaster.

In "Corn off the cob," H. Fontaine Little's bright column of "local chat, news and comments," in The Tri-Cities Daily, he says another New York Times staff correspondent now is in the Muscle Shoals district. It will be recalled one staff writer of the Times gave the Shoals district valuable publicity recently in that newspaper, and here's hoping the second correspondent repeats the performance.

Mr. Little says:
P. D. Palmer, representing the New York Times as staff correspondent, has been a visitor here this week. He obtained a collection of photographs and data of and appertaining to Muscle Shoals, and will use them in a big feature story that the Times will publish in the near future.

Gobs of publicity like this will keep Muscle Shoals from ever becoming a dead subject, even if they never extract an ounce of nitrogen from the air and let Wilson Dam power go to waste.

CERTAINLY WORTHY

Courtland and Albany-Decatur people have the right idea when it comes to building of roads. Resolution and petition mean little unless there is action to follow. This is the time action followed—Albany-Decatur and Courtland business interests placed money in their belief that the Courtland-Decatur road should be made passable at this time. Money gave the answer as to how badly Courtland people wanted to come here and Albany-Decatur people wished to go there. The move was worthy, the handful of citizens are to be congratulated upon backing a spirit with dollars.

THE INDUSTRIAL MAP

Going the rounds of Albany-Decatur industries it is refreshing to find that nearly every industry is running at capacity, the majority running behind orders. Employment of additional labor since the last industrial year is likewise the rule rather than the exception. Many of our industries are planning improvement and enlargement within the early spring months, that indicates good. It is likewise found that our industries here, all established and running on a sound financial basis, are ever ready to help in bringing additional industries. That is generally known as "co-operation," but we call it just plain "good folks." You can get co-operation anywhere, it's listed with "moral support." Now the latter phrase when used in business, is assuredly of value, but financial support is a better way to get the result. Our industries are giving that, they combine financial support with a willingness to get out and work to bring new industries. Looks like we are going to have a good year.

THE WHEELER STATION KILLING

During the past week, papers state, a seven year old negro girl was killed near Wheeler Station. The girl was hit by a speeding automobile, accounts varying as to the speed the automobile was traveling. One report stands solidly though, the car did not stop after striking the child, maintaining a terrific pace that soon took the occupants away from the scene of the murder.

It was only plain murder and whether white or black the extreme penalty should be inflicted as soon as officers take the criminals into custody. It is said the car was occupied by two men and a woman and no clues have been given as to the identity. Reckless driving is a charge that must be answered before the law, killing and not obeying the human impulse to stop and help is nothing less than first degree murder, no matter if the four legal elements constituting a charge of first degree murder do not enter into the case. These people should be hunted vigorously and punished according to the degree of their crime.

ANOTHER GOOD TEST

Tuesday night the cities will know if they are to really get out after industries, or if they will remain on the banks of the Tennessee, quietly waiting for a flow of gold to start toward this section of the Tennessee Valley. The days of alchemy may not have come to an end, but you cannot change dirt into gold unless there is first: The desire; second: The effort, and third: The result. With more than 13,000 souls in these two cities, there is little question that "$50,000 for 50,000 folks," can be raised in short order. It is the organization that counts. This paper might talk every day in the year and nothing be accomplished, other than hearing readers say that they agree with the expressed opinions, it is the organization that is going to tell the difference between the desire for the industrial drive and the actual raising of funds. Here we are just closing the Benevolent Hospital campaign, we are to be congratulated upon that drive, other cities in Alabama have failed within the length of time we were allotted, but we did not fail. That is all the more reason why a nine-day industrial campaign should reach the set goal at this time.

BRISBANE'S CALIFORNIA

Of all the California boosters who ever soiled himself with contact in the outside world there has never been a "native son" who could equal the boosting abilities of Arthur Brisbane. Brisbane goes to the land of the Golden Gate periodically and newspapers using his material cannot help but pause and marvel at the man who is spending four of every six days of his writing week telling of the advantages of California. To a North Alabamian this sort of boosting is not unusual. People in North Alabama happily are making as much noise over this section as any Californian every dared make over his land of promise. Granted Brisbane is right in his calculations and predictions, granted he knows what he is talking about, we feel that he should not inflict his views on people who do not care to read what he has to say. He should at least divide his ideas—why not try a trip to the Muscle Shoals district and tell the people of a glorious country that is in the first stage of development—it is probable that the heralded development in the Valley is more than can be assimilated by the Brisbane mind. California has her development, why should he worry, why cannot he interest himself in those portions of his nation which are undeveloped, the nation will appreciate him to greater extent.

THE AGE-OLD QUESTION

Perhaps readers wonder why The Daily continues to hammer at the Second Avenue question, the question of paving, or resurfacing when there seems to be no result thus far from the Albany city council. Such a query can be answered partly in pointing to the hope that within a few months there will be a whiteway system extending from the old Bank building on Wilson Avenue, Decatur, to the Y. M. C. A. building as it looks down Second Avenue. Additional lighting will encourage people in the use of the two main thoroughfares of the cities, complete lighting will serve as an advertising medium to the outside world, even adequate lighting is not going to serve to encourage people to use the Avenue, they will continue to use other streets if possible, they will come to the Avenue when they have to and not until such a time. Albany-Decatur citizens feel that they must keep pace with other Valley cities. Some citizens feel that an expenditure for lighting and paving is out of the question. We agree with them, if they desire to remain in the rear ranks of other Valley cities. Other communities of the Muscle Shoals section are traveling at a rapid rate, we must adopt like procedure if we hope to keep place in the procession. The Daily will leave the Avenue question when the street is paved and the cities lighted, not until that time.

A CHANCE THE Y. M. C. A. MIGHT TAKE HERE

Industrial Olympics? Eventually—why not now? Such is the heading of an article appearing in the current issue of Association Men, Y. M. C. A., publicity organ which is received by a number of Twin City readers. Carl Easton Williams discusses at length a New Jersey experiment in inter-plant athletics which has developed into state-wide competition. This growth has caused him to think beyond to an Industrial Olympic even, taking in the working man of the world as he plays.

Here in Albany-Decatur we have nothing to warrant thought over an industrial olympic prospect, we have, however, here an opportunity to think of the advantage of inter-plant athletic competition. Here, with our numerous industries employing thousands of young and old men, for age is no bar in athletics of this class, lies an opportunity for the Y. M. C. A. to show actual results within the Twin Cities, enabling that organization to fulfill the promise of a complete gymnasium for the men and boys of these cities. As a matter of fact the Y. M. C. A. is the only organization which could successfully put over such a program. It is probable that if the local organization should adopt the inter-plant athletic competition idea that the financial co-operation of the L. & N., major industry at the present time here, and of the numerous other plants in the Twin Cities can be obtained.

The idea has been carried heretofore in a degree, inter-plant baseball has its day, proving successful to the men who took part, unsuccessful financially to those who backed the proposition. Here is another proposal entirely. Track and field athletics take in every man and boy, whether he is quick of eye and foot or not, he is eligible. Thus the plan should find favor with every class of working man.

Track, in reality, is strictly a southern sport. Southerners are supreme in such competition and once it is explained to those who have never had such advantage offered, it is likely that some interesting athletic events can be planned for this end of the state. Surely the managers and owners of plants will gladly fall in line with the idea. Men trained physically to act quickly, men trained mentally to think accurately, use judgment quickly, are as a whole a class of men who turn out a superior class of work in their respective crafts.

It seems as an inducement to the Y. M. C. A., to try such a plan, increased interest of men alone will serve to at least give the idea a trial. Then, too, it has proved a success at other points, the more reason why it should prove successful here. Acquaint men with the Y. M. C. A. idea of clean athletic competition and there will be quite an addition to the membership rolls when the next Y. M. C. A. campaign is heralded.

The local Y has been doing a good work in carrying on the Underprivileged child's campaign, it is doing a vast work in preparing the next generation of industrial and business workers for these cities, but it should not allow the present generation to go into the future without at least offering these advantages.

The Daily offers this idea in the light of constructive criticism, feeling that the industrialist will benefit no more than the Y. M. C. A., once the plan is adopted and tried out. There is no notion advanced that the Y is not taking care of its job in training the young people of the community, but we have comparatively few children who have not the means provided by parents for their support, eighty percent of our people are church-goers—we have our Boy Scout organizations. The Y has played a part in bringing the church going total to a high plane, we grant that gladly, what The Daily offers is an idea for increasing the value of the institution to the cities which each year are called upon to support.

UNDERLYING CAUSES OF ANNOYING COUGHS

When the Uvula Is Too Long, or the Larynx Is Irritated from a Cold or from Smoking, the Symptom May Appear.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MANY a night has been a disturbed and unhappy one because of a distressing and uncomfortable cough. A nasty little tickling in the throat or bronchial tubes is as irresistible as if a feather were being used to tantalize the sufferer. There are many causes for a cough of this sort. The tickling may be purely mechanical. That is, some perfectly observable factor is involved in producing it. For instance, the uvula may be too long.

When you look in the glass with your mouth open, you will see a little pendulum-like projection hanging from the back and upper part of the throat. This is sometimes called the palate; the doctors call it the "uvula."

It is rare indeed to find two palates of the same thickness and length. It matters not what its shape may be, provided the uvula does not drag on the base of the tongue or swing against other throat tissues. But when this happens it will cause exactly the same sensation that would be produced by a foreign body in the throat.

I have seen a great many cases of needless cough ended at once by snipping off the end of the uvula. The procedure may seem formidable, but it is quickly done and after the passing of a couple of days of soreness, the nagging cough disappears.

But a more common cause for such a cough is one of the many forms of cold. There are some colds which make their attack almost exclusively upon the lining tissues of the nose and its nearby cavities.

Other colds attack the tonsils or the back part of the throat. Sometimes the ears are involved. Occasionally the muscles or remote parts of the body are affected before the poisons are eliminated. In some attacks of the so-called "cold," the larynx, as the voice-box is called, or the bronchial tubes may become congested and unusually sensitive. There may be just enough swelling to give the foreign body sensation.

In such a case as this there may be incessant coughing. Especially at night, on lying down, the coughing starts in and may continue off and on all night.

Then we get other coughs of the "reflex" type. You will be surprised to learn that if the ear-canal be improving in this state, and the greatest improvement of all, thanks largely to Hiram Johnson, is in government.

"Things used to be different," says John Francis Neylan, standing in the lobby of the state capitol at Sacramento, pointing to the magnificent heavy wood doors into the senate and the assembly, he tells how it used to be.

There, as the senators solemnly marched to their seats stood Jerry Burke, handing to each senator in the ranks of his safe and sane bought-majority a narrow slip of paper. Opposite the number of each bill coming up was written "yes or no." And that is how they voted.

Walter Parker handed similar slips to each member of the bosses majority in the assembly lobby. Burke and Parker were two sub-bosses under the big boss, and Lew Martin, Sergeant at arms, kept all kinds of drinks for the obedient majority in his office nearby.

Changed are the good old days since Hiram Johnson started. He was elected governor by 19,000. Burke and Parker vanished. He was re-elected by 180,000. He was elected to the senate by 350,000.

the evening. Neither Charleston nor premature boch has ruined that young man's nerves.

FROM Pinnsbruck representatives of the Tyroles, cable Senator Borah asking him to curb Mussolini, calling attention to "Italian injustice in the South Tyrol and Mussolini's threats against North Tyrol."

Senator Borah and others in the United States government should sympathize with the Tyrol and all the rest of Europe and stop short with sympathy. There should be no meddling or mixing in European affairs. Italy and Germany, full grown long before 1776 are old enough to attend to their own business.

DID you read Lloyd George's extremely interesting article on Mussolini's defiance of Germany. Nothing could be more interesting as showing how young the world is than the continuing struggle between Goths and Romans down to our own day.

That Drenner Pass in the Tyrol interests Mussolini atavistically and practically. Through that pass the "Germanic Barbarians" marched down to conquer the Italian peninsula, leaving there the blue eyes and flaxen hair, now conspicuous in Northern Italy. Through that pass there came the Northern warrior that sat dressed in his furs on the throne of the Caesars.

And through the same pass perhaps in our Christian days, rode the repentant German emperor when he came to stand barefooted in the snow below the Pope's window in mid-winter, humbly begging the Pope's forgiveness at Canossa.

Bismarck in one of his rows with the Catholic party said, "We are not again going to Canossa." And now with Bismarck and the old emperor in the grave, you have the Italian Bismarck, threatening to carry Canossa to Berlin.

THIS is written on the train from California to New York, Easterners slipping over ice and snow will be glad to know that in the sunshine at the Can Bernardino station, it is almost uncomfortably hot, the fruit trees in blossom.

There is an excuse for the Eskimo who stays with his ice and snow all winter. He doesn't know about California and hasn't carfare. But what excuse is there for those along the North Atlantic coast, or in the cold middle west, that do know, have carfare and leisure and don't come to California?

EVERYTHING is booming and

Two Fires at An Early Hour

The month of March opened with two blazes in Albany-Decatur today, the home of L. B. Wyatt, 325 Jackson street, Albany and W. H. Duncan 601 Walnut street, Decatur, being damaged by early morning fires. The two calls came almost at an identical hour, the first call being made at 8 o'clock and the second at 8:30 o'clock. The origin of the Wyatt fire was given as sparks falling on the roof, while the latter blaze origin was given as unknown. Both the Albany and Decatur departments were called to the Duncan residence.

The new $150,000 home of the Birmingham Sash Door company has just been completed.

A permanent organization of Methodist ministers has been effected at Talladega.

SHIPPER-POLYTINSKY WEDDING TAKES PLACE AT HERMITAGE HOTEL

Nashville was chosen by Miss Hilda Polytinsky of Decatur, Ala., and Morris Shipper of St. Louis, for the place of their marriage which took place Sunday afternoon. The wedding celebration, which included in addition to the ceremony an elaborate bridal supper, was on the mezzanine floor of the Hermitage Hotel. Members of the family and a group of special friends made up the company of wedding guests. Among these were the bride's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. A. Polytinsky, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. A. Bernstein, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Barnett, all of Decatur; Mrs. L. Wind, Miss Ruth Wind, Miss Rhea Cohen and Phillip Wind of Huntsville; Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Polytinsky of Athens, Ala.; Wilson Orr of Hartselle, Ala.; Harry Shipper of St. Louis, and a coterie of Nashville friends.

Rabbi Richard M. Stern officiated and the marriage service was at 5:30 o'clock. There were special musical numbers as well as the program given by an orchestra.

The bride's sister, Miss Adelle Polytinsky, served as maid of honor and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Eugene B. Polytinsky, was matron of honor. Harry Shipper of St. Louis, was best man and E. B. Polytinsky, the groomsmen. A striking figure was the bride in her gown of Brittany blue georgette and a picture hat. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and rosebuds which fell into a shower.

She was given in marriage by her father. A gown of green georgette with crystal trimmings was worn by the maid of honor and the matron of honor. She was in a cream lace worn over a foundation of pink satin. Both wore large hats and their bouquets were of sweet peas and rosebuds.

In the private dining room on the mezzanine the guests were seated for serving at a table which was a work of decorative art. The bride's cake, an unusually elaborate one, was the centerpiece and the lilies of the valley, sweet peas and roses were clustered with effect about this.

Mr. and Mrs. Shipper left Sunday night for a stay in New York before going to St. Louis to reside. The two have a number of friends and relatives here, as well as in their respective homes, with whom they are popular and who will receive the news of their marriage as a matter of exceptional interest. The bride, after her graduation from the Margaret Allen school in Birmingham, Ala., took a diploma at the Benjamin school in New York. Mr. Shipper is a graduate of Washington University in St. Louis.—Nashville Tennessean.

The bride, the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Polytinsky, of Decatur, has many friends throughout Morgan county who wish her much happiness while regretting that she will make her home in another city. The groom has visited here on numerous occasions and already has won for himself a wide circle of friends in this section.

DOBBS-MATTHEWS

Miss Azilee Matthews and Mr. Wendell Dobbs were married Saturday at Columbia, Tenn., where they were accompanied by a number of close friends. The bride and groom are both popular in the Priceville and Crowton section where they reside. Mr. and Mrs. Dobbs were accompanied to Columbia by the following friends: Misses Sue Collier, Ruth Sively, Lucille Matthews, and Evelyn Sively. Messrs. Virgil Walden, Eloise Bean, Mason Matthews and James Price. Mr. and Mrs. Dobbs will reside in the Crowton neighborhood for the present.

Mrs. S. D. Hill of Seattle, Wash., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Priest for a few days enroute to her home after visiting at several southern points.

Mrs. W. B. Edmundson and her house guest, Mrs. Sally Neidinger of New York city, returned Saturday night from a two weeks motor tour through Florida. While at Miami Beach they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Alford. They were the overnight guests in Valdosta, Ga. of Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Cornish, former residents of the Twin Cities while Rev. Cornish was Rector of St. John's church. Their hosts of friends here will be glad to know that they are very pleasantly situated there and that Rev. Cornish has been put on the Bishop's Executive Board. He also holds several places of honor on civic and social service boards.

CALL MEETING OF PROGRESSIVE CULTURE CLUB

There will be a called meeting of the Progressive Culture club at the home of Mrs. J. D. Wyker at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. B. F. Holmes is able to be up after an illness of flu.

Abbie D. Counts, who holds a position in Mt. Hope, Ala., spent Saturday and Sunday with homefoks.

Mrs. J. A. Counts left Sunday to spend a week with relatives in Mt. Hope.

Miss Mary Robinson spent Sunday with relatives in Birmingham.

Joe Goode has returned from Auburn, Ala., where he was the weekend guest of his uncle, Bill Goode, who is a student there.

Mizpah Chapter No. 19 O. E. S. will meet Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at Christian Science hall.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Pierce and daughters, Nancy and Nell Rose and Mr. and Mrs. Lynch of Huntsville motored here and spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Edmundson and their guests, Mrs. Sally Neidinger and Colonel Firth of New York city.

Scott Conley of New York city, arrived on Saturday night to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Cortner.

Miss Betty Burleson of Centerville, Ala., was called to the bedside of her sister, Mrs. Kitty Prewett who has been very ill with flu for over a week.

Mrs. John Cobb of Prattville will arrive this week to spend a few days with her mother, Mrs. Samuel Blackwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Barton have moved into their home 602 Seventh avenue West. This house formerly owned by Leon Robinson.

Mrs. J. R. Smiley returned Saturday evening from a weeks visit to Mrs. Oliver in Birmingham.

W. B. Smith has returned to Birmingham after a few days visit here.

Mrs. C. T. Hopper of Courtland, is the guest of Mrs. William Moseley Jr.

Jack Haynes spent Sunday in Nashville.

The friends of Mrs. J. W. McDaniel will be glad to know that she is improving from a recent severe illness at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Watson on 8th avenue West.

Mrs. R. L. Furst left Sunday for a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dean at Garden City.

Connie Pike, chief claim agent of the L. & N., Birmingham was in the cities on business today.

Miss Myrtle McDermott of Atlanta who was called here by the illness and death of her father, Will McDermott will return to Atlanta Tuesday morning.

Helpful Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I met a young man at a party when he took me home. He said he was coming over one evening last week but he didn't come and he didn't call up.

Would it be proper for me to call him up and ask why he didn't come?

WUST: Since this young man was rude enough to break an engagement with you without informing you beforehand that he could not keep it you must not get in touch with him. He owes you an apology for his conduct and unless this is forthcoming in a reasonable time from the list of your friends.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

When boys ask for a "date" and we want to refuse them what should we say? PEG AND LIB.

PEG AND LIB: Merely say that you have a previous engagement which prevents you from accepting the invitation.

Dear Annie Laurie:

Will you please answer the following question, "Why doesn't a couple not engaged have the same right to each others kisses as a couple that is engaged, if they are sure that they love each other deeply?" Philosophy

Philosophy:

My dear, the conventions of life often offer rules which to the young mind seem superfluous. You should regard your kisses as sacred, engagements a binding oath which you and the young man take, you do not allow trivialities to come between you. Can you not see that a kiss given freely to any and every one is but a passing fancy?

Alleged Check Artist Is Held

A man said to have given the name of Brown who is charged with having forged checks in several cities is being held at Gadsden, Ala., according to reports made public today by city of Albany officers. Officers were sent to that city from Albany to determine any connection Brown might have with forgeries here. It is alleged that Brown confessed to having passed checks here. It is stated that checks were forged upon the Albany cafe and Messers Cafe.

Aged Woman Died Saturday Evening

Elizabeth S. Smith, aged 84 years, passed away Saturday evening at the home of her grandson, J. H. Smith, 219 5th avenue west after a long illness. The remains were laid to rest at Falkville this morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. J. H. Hill conducting the ceremonies, Priest directing the burial. Mrs. Smith passed away after a long and useful life and many friends regretted learning of her demise.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I'm a girl of sixteen. A young man has been going about with me who is about twenty-eight or twenty-nine years old.

Do you think I'm too young for him? BOBBED HAIR.

BOBBED HAIR: If this young man shares your tastes and interests—if you have aims and ideals in common—there is no reason why your friendship should not be a delightful one. Of course, you must not give up your other friends, my dear.

Annie Laurie will welcome inquiries on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

been keeping company with a boy, several years my senior and he has been married, but has a divorce and a small child. My parents object to my going with him, but I love him. Advise me what to do about it.

Blue-Eyed Johnnie Blue-Eyed Johnnie:

The difference in your ages, if too great, has all to do with your future happiness, you must enjoy the same things and age always changes likes and dislikes. If you love this man and he loves you, if you have likes in common, if you are ready to take the responsibility of a household, if you will care for a child that is not your own there is no reason why you should not be happy with him. Talk with your parents and ask their opinion—they are older and can advise you what is best, they are looking after your welfare.

Mexico Opened To Wire Service

Manager Carlyse, of the local Western Union offices, today announced that a contract has been concluded, subject to the approval of President Calles, opening up Mexico for connection by wire with all points in the United States.

He made public the following dispatch:

"Subject to approval of President Calles, the boards of the Western Union and Mexican companies, a contract has been concluded with the Mexican government for introduction into Mexico of modern telegraph service, including extension to international traffic of night letter, day letter night message and money transfer service. The Western Union, in conjunction with the Mexican Telegraph company, thus brings Mexico City as close to New York telegraphically, as Chicago or Boston."

RIOT IS AVERTED IN BIRMINGHAM YARDS

Special Officer Hurt In Pitched Battle With Negroes

(Associated Press.)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 1.—A special officer of a railroad and a negro were wounded seriously here today in a short affray which threatened to assume riot proportions in the Louisville and Nashville railroad yards.

The wounded officer is J. W. Phillips, who was hurt in the head. The injured negro is Porter Miles, one of the two men who were accosted by the officer, was charged with trespassing.

The negroes began firing when the officer attempted to arrest them and a pitched battle ensued, causing a riot call to be turned in. Before police reserves had arrived, the officer and Miles had fallen. The other negro escaped.

ments, connected by a few feet of wire, and protected by a single patent develop into a system of 16,000,000 Bell owned stations, connected by 51,000,000 miles of wire, and protected by a total of 9,000 patents. There are 27,213,100 telephones in use in the world today, of which number 61 per cent are located in the United States and most of them are a part of the Bell System.

On March 10, fifty years ago, the first sentence was transmitted over the telephone by Alexander Graham Bell from his laboratory on the top floor of an old house in Boston to Thomas A. Watson, his assistant in another room on the same floor. The first words transmitted were, "Mr. Watson, come here. I want you." These two men were the sole active telephone workers at that time.

THRILLING STORY

The early days of the telephone furnish a thrilling story of a desperate struggle for life in a cold business world which frowned on sinking money in a "toy," that the telephone was then called. Four men gave themselves without reserve to bless the world with the electrical transmission of speech. Each made a distinct contribution. Bell contributed his inventive genius; Thomas A. Watson, his skilled craftsmanship which fashioned Bell's idea into a working instrument; Thomas Sanders, the first financial assistance which was inspired by the love of his daughter for the romantic inventor; and Gardner G. Hubbard, the first publicity man for the telephone, the personality necessary to acquaint the world with its possibilities. The common contribution of each was faith and enthusiasm that entailed sacrifice. Thomas A. Watson is the only member of this group living today.

Development in business and organization backed by the patient toil of the scientists in the Bell research laboratories has featured the telephone's progress in recent years.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membrane and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membrane and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Attention!

There will be a regular convocation Albany Lodge, 491, A. F. & A. M., Monday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Telephone Building. All Masons are cordially invited to attend.

How to stop BOILS!

There's only one way to stop boils. Stop the cause of boils! That's common sense—isn't it? All right. Boils thrive because the blood gets so weak in healthy, red cells that it can't throw off the impurities that get into the body. There's not enough rich, red blood to purify the system. Now—S. S. S. builds back the blood to fighting strength. S. S. S. builds red blood-cells—builds them by the millions! Boils dry up! S. S. S. is the thing. Impurities that cause boils and other skin eruptions can't stand up against the rich, healthy, red blood that S. S. S. builds. That's all there is to it. Stop boils with S. S. S. It's the way. Get it at any druggist. The larger bottle is more economical.

Miss Emma Lanzey and her class in Home Economics of the Lawrence County high school served dinner to the members of the county board of education and other members of the high school faculty and the county supervisor, Friday in the home economics room of the school. The dinner was served in four courses with ped and aproned acting as waitresses. The members of the class neatly capers and jonquills as decoration gave a touch of spring time to the attractive room. Principal W. T. Jordan rendered an interesting financial report for the school in the dinner hour and set forth the struggle being made to meet the needs of the school both as to meeting salaries of teachers and running expenses.

Stocks Fluctuate Again Violently

(Associated Press)
NEW YORK, March 1—Violent fluctuations in stock prices today reflected a struggle between opposing speculative forces for control of the market. Alarmed by last week's drastic decline in several specialties, banking groups took over the holdings of distressed pools and brought about a temporary rally, which bolstered the rest of the market. With the marking up of the call money rate to 5.5 per cent, however, bear traders launched another savage attack.

Lash In Schools May Be Abolished

(Associated Press)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 1—To whip or not to whip convicts and school children promises to become a live issue in the forthcoming political campaign in Alabama.

On the question of corporal punishment for Alabama convicts, candidates for all office in Alabama are expected to be sounded. An effort also is underway, it is stated, to arouse interest in a movement to abolish the lash in school rooms in line with most states of the union.

Girl applied for a job in an office as secretary of the filing cabinet. "Can you handle files?" asked the boss.

"I hope I can," she replied. "I have been a manicurist for nine years."

Another thing that has always puzzled people is why fortune tellers never seem able to do much for themselves in that line.

Teacher: Johnny, what great change occurred during the world war.
Johnny: Pa bought me a new washboard.

Small Boy: I want another box of pills for my mother like I got yesterday, and charge 'em.

Druggist: Certainly. Did your mother like them?

Small Boy: I dunno, they just fit my airgun.

RAILROAD BILL IS PASSED BY HOUSE

Blanton Amendment Is Defeated; Act Now Goes to Senate

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 1.—The Watson-Parker bill, to set up new methods of settling railroad labor disputes was passed today by the house.

The measure, which now goes to the senate, provides for abolition of the railroad labor board. Final action was taken after the house had defeated a motion by Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas, to send the bill back to the commerce committee with instructions to provide for enlarging the powers of an emergency board, which the measure provides as a last resort in settlement of disputes.

Roger Williams Club Has Meet

The Roger Williams Pioneer Club of the First Baptist church, Albany, met Saturday evening at the community hall on East Grant street, hearing good talks from advisory board and planning an extension of service to the cities of Albany-Decatur. The meeting was well attended. E. E. Speer spoke on the aim of the organization. Mr. James talked of the future of the club, while Mr. Lee, member of the council, promised service to the boys from his organization.

Employees Lined Up By Robber Band

(Associated Press)
NEW YORK, March 1.—Lining up 35 employees against a wall, a squad of armed and masked robbers today escaped with $50,000 worth of pelts from the Applebaum and Cohn fur dressing company's shop on Osborne street, Brooklyn. The thieves escaped also with $20,000 worth of skin from the firm of Julius Klugman and Son on 31st street, Manhattan early yesterday, police learned today.

Portions of ten streets will be paved in Florence and others will be opened with chert surface.

Sportsmen Prepare To Greet King Tarpon When He Comes In June

(Associated Press)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 1.—King Tarpon has not left his home in tropical waters for his annual migration to the Alabama Gulf coast, but the fishermen of Baldwin and Mobile counties are getting ready to greet him on his arrival, which will be some time in June or early in July at the latest, writes Davis Holt, Mobile sportsman in the current issue of the Alabama Sportsman.

"Alabama fishermen have never organized tarpon clubs, or otherwise encouraged the taking of the silver king in an orderly and sportsmanlike manner," continues Mr. Holt's article. "Those who have followed this sport have done so in a sporadic sort of a way; each following his own devices as to the kind of a tackle used. It is only fair to say, however, that most of the tarpon brought to gaff by

Tarheels Meet Dark Horse of Tourney Tonight In Atlanta; Kentucky Cats Stick

North Carolina's Tarheels are run into the fighting Wildcat.

Harry Greb has chosen to leave the confines of New York kingdom. Greb is disgusted with himself, he realizes that poor training is responsible for his loss to Tiger Flowers. Greb dropped the world's middleweight championship. Harry has never followed training rules, abstinence from certain foods has never bothered him. He has gone his way in the manner which pleased him, he has listened to no counsel from anybody. Now he is going out to rebuild himself and prepare for another tilt with the song singing Atlanta negro deacon. He should get a return match in about six months, provided the Tiger is not defeated before the lapse of time.

Kentucky goes into the semi-final clip with a clean slate in conference victories. The Kentuckians have run up a total of eight straight in the southern conference and seem ready to carry on to the final lap of the championship journey. The Wildcat has emerged from his lair after a long wait, the last winning combination coming out of Lexington in 1921. The Cats will have plenty for claw sharpening process tonight when they tackle the Aggies.

North Carolina University ran into the stiffest opposition in many years Saturday when they were forced to the limit against the University of Virginia. The Cavaliers finally lost the verdict 25-23, but not until the Tarheels had given every bit of basketball talent they possessed.

The old order may change this year. A southern team may grab the title. As the usual thing the title goes to some South Atlantic five, but Carolina is still in the rumptus, giving plenty of hope for the South Atlantic section. Carolina will win tonight unless someone tosses an anvil in the direction of Cobb and Newcomb. These lads have been rampaging since the tourney opened and seem in a fair way to keep up the pace.

The continued winning of two Mississippi teams is more than fans bargained for at the beginning. Mississippi was recognized as having a strong claim, but the Aggies are entirely a dark horse. Their claim to fame will be tested tonight when they

Leading Fans Cannot Find Support For a Franchise

The sun will not shine on Albany-Decatur baseball horizon this year, it was indicated by leading fans today after a conference Saturday night which was poorly attended by fans who were willing to put up the necessary funds for a franchise in organized baseball. Huntsville has not yet made known intentions of going into or withdrawing from the league, the answer of that city being dependent to a great extent upon these cities.

The Saturday evening meeting was a replica of a meeting held a week ago at Decatur city hall at which no more than a handful of fans were present. The leaders thought for a time that there was sufficient interest here to guarantee the raising of a $5,000 fund, necessary for placing these cities in the league. Thus far, leaders declare, interest has been at a low ebb. It was decided that in view of past years of unsuccessful attempt here to enjoy a successful financial season that the idea will be abandoned, at time this year.

Every-day magic

Chairs that flop into beds—bags that suck up dirt—tiny ticking things that count all day long for you. Daylight any night just by pushing a button. A stream that never stops till you turn off a faucet. Any voice you want, talking to you from a cage on your desk or wall. Actions of yesterday, of people miles away, going on on a curtain before you. Stilled throats singing to you from discs; distant throats singing to you from nothing!

Uncanny, daily magic—this, due to national advertising. Advertisements have given you flashlights, telephones, typewriters, automobiles, cold creams, motion pictures. They have given you new eyes, new ears, new hands, new feet, new faces, new emotions. They have urged such wide use, so lowered prices, that almost wishes are autos, almost beggars can ride. Through advertisements you've laid down the shovel and the hoe. You can buy a whole harvest ready-to-eat in cans. You've hung up the fiddle and the bow, for a radio. There's little old-time work left in this age of amazing short-cuts.

Read the advertisements. They keep you to the fore of modern life
